Personal Information

This section explains how Ten Thousand Villages of Raleigh will handle information we learn about you from your visit to this Site. The information we receive depends upon what you do when visiting our Site.

(1) We collect and store only the following information about you if you visit our Web Site to browse our content: the name of the domain you are using to access the Internet (for example, aol.com, if you are connecting from an America Online account, or iowa.edu if you are connecting from the University of Iowa's domain); the date and time you access our Site; the Internet address of the Web site from which you linked directly to our Site; the type of Web browser you are using; and what information you view while visiting our Site.

(2) You may enter your email address to be included in our customer database. This email is collected and used to send notification of events in the store as well as any promotional events (such as discount coupons). This information is maintained in a secured database and is not shared with any organization.

(3) You also may decide to send us personally-identifying information, for example, in an electronic mail message asking a question or providing us with a comment or suggestion.

Use of Information

(1) We use the information we collect to measure the number of visitors to the different sections of our Site, to learn what information is the most viewed, and to help us make our Site more useful to visitors.

This gathering and storing of information is separate from the activity described as monitoring in the Other Information section of this policy.

(2) The information gathered is used for two purposes: management of the Site and, in the case of suspected unauthorized activity, for law enforcement and possible criminal prosecution (see Security Notice).

(3) We use personally-identifying information to respond to your comment or suggestion, and to count the number of people sending us comments. In certain instances, your comment or suggestion may be forwarded to other divisions within Ten Thousand Villages of Raleigh if they are in the best position to respond to your message.

User Choices

Cookies are essentially tokens of information, such as preferences and passwords, which some Web servers collect from you when you access them. That data is stored on your hard drive and not on the Web site's server. Whenever you visit a "cookie" site, the server looks for its cookie on your hard drive and, if found, then reads the information it stored there. Cookies generally are stored in your browser's directory or folder in a file named cookie.txt (MagicCookie on a Macintosh).

This Site does not use cookies.

The user can determine whether or not to enter in personal information in an email communication with Ten Thousand Villages of Raleigh or not.

The user can determine whether to sign-up to be on our mailing list on the Web Site. This is similar to the paper based form that can be filled out in the store, and the information is stored the same way.
